

May 5, 2020

The Semi-Weekly Succulent

How Hussman "Masters" Suck It Up

APRIL SOMEHOW ENDS!

Students Barely React: Exhaustion and Social Distance Suspected

A snapshot of breathless relief,
This sailor and nurse on V-J Day:
Nostalgia and joy, our parents say,
Simply unhealthy, we say, good grief!

No matter if you have no gal or beau,
Or if your person lives out of reach:
No such outpoured affection, we teach,
Not with masks saving the mouth and nose.

Now, let us review our sayings again:
"Kung-Flu," says the president.
"I'm lost," says the precedent.
"Toilet paper," says the sentiment.

Giulia Heyward Begins Internship!

The past semester's litany of disruptions didn't stop our resident Journalist-Warrior from securing a position with Washington Monthly Magazine. When asked, Giulia reports that she will have to squeeze the work in alongside her deep-dive into the NYT 2019 List of Best Books. "Priorities," she added.

Whitney Brothers Begins Marketing Internship!

Though her initial plans at U-Tenn caught the coronavirus, Whitney snagged a summer position with VisionPoint Marketing. Because the University has drained her for two semesters, Whitney will in turn support draining universities through marketing services.

Alicia Carter Unveils "Barriers" Project!

"Coral in the Crossfire" tells the story of jeopardized coral reefs in Belize. Alicia took photos for the story, though she repeatedly ignored requests from SWS for autographs from Jaws (the reclusive shark-legend). Shark Week is now ruined.

The Succulent | Volume 5

May 5, 2020

Our Semi-Weekly, Summer-y Walter

Summer Recommendations

The following advice is loosely adapted from a glitchy Zoom interview with our financial mascot and namesake.

"Read Until You're Blind."

Walter himself reads in bed, and he recommends similar tenacity. But he only recommends one text: the Arkansas Democrat Gazette.

"Travel Until You're Sore."

"I travel frequently between my study and my kitchen," he reports. "In my home, that's roughly 1,000 feet, and anyone can do it." His celebrity endorsement brings the pleasures of quarantine into sharp relief, truly.

Classified
Ads:
You
Want It,
We got It!

For Rent: INSTITUTIONAL PRESTIGE

Now that alum Nikole Hannah-Jones has won the Pulitzer Prize, Hussman holds momentary success which it will still use 10 years after its expiration.

For Fk's Sake: CREATIVE DESIGN HELP WANTED!

As mentioned last volume, Kevin LaTorre needs a hand designing a project, if you want to contact him. If not, you'll see the same desperate ad next time!

UNC System President Expects to Open UNC for Fall 2020

Interim President Bill Roper announces that he plans for UNC campuses to be open for next semester. He admits that the situation is still developing. No word from UNC Chancellor Gush-Kite-Wish, who may challenge Roper to a no-holds-barred cage fight for dominance.

Amari Pollard Publishes a Short Story!

Amari published "That's Where You'll Find Me" at The Storybook Corner just this past week. When asked for comment, she repeated that submissions are open for all short fiction. Translated: "Spread the word like it's a half-hearted class campaign."

Lindsey Slack Begins Contributing Writer Position!

She will write an article each week for The Everygirl, an online site which serves any woman who wishes to be inspired. In return, Lindsey has been promised the role of "Vermont-Horse-Tampa Brady Correspondent" upon her graduation.